

Passages - So Late in the Day

That was the problem with women falling out of love, the veil of romance fell away from their eyes, and they looked in and could read you.