

Passages - The Dream of a Ridiculous Man

It seemed clear to me that life and the world somehow depended upon me now. I may almost say that the world now seemed created for me alone: if I shot myself the world would cease to be

Does it matter whether it was a dream or reality, if the dream made known to me the truth? If once one has recognised the truth and seen it, one knows that it is the truth and that there is no other and there cannot be, whether one is asleep or awake. Let it be a dream. so be it, but that real life of which you make so much I had meant to extinguish by suicide, and my dream, gay dream oh, it revealed to me a different life, renewed, grand and full of power

How can it be repeated and what for? I love and can love only that earth which I have left, stained with my blood, when, in my ingratitude, I quenched my life with a bullet in my heart. But I have never, never ceased to love that earth, and perhaps on the very night I parted from it I loved it loved it more than ever.

On our earth we can only love with suffering and through suffering. We cannot love otherwise, and we know of no other sort of love. I want suffering in order to love. I long, I thirst, this very instant, to kiss with tears the earth that I have left, and I don't want, I won't accept life on any other!"
